Unique opportunity for Brazilian veterinary students

During the Spring and Summer of 2011 The Ohio State University and Bella Vista Equine Veterinary Services will offer a six week course in Equine and Bovine Reproduction. The course is geared towards hands-on learning opportunities and the most up-to-date reproductive technologies.

Students will have the opportunity to be involved with professors from The Ohio State University and experience the daily operation of a recognized equine reproductive veterinary practice.

Each student will spend three weeks at The Ohio State University with the Department of Veterinary Preventive Medicine in the area of bovine reproduction and three weeks at Bella Vista Equine Veterinary Services. The students have the option to select either of the three week courses, but priority will be given to students that register for an entire six week rotation.

For course information, accommodation, fees and schedules, please contact us. We look forward to hear from you!
